

A Day in the Life of a Giant Salamander

Giant Salamanders are nocturnal creatures.

During the day, they hide in holes in the riverbed and under rocks, and venture out into the river at night.

They lie in wait in the waters, and when a fish or river crab gets too close, within a second they catch and eat it.

When the sun rises, they return to their caves and rest.

A salamander lying in wait for fish at night

Hiding in the crevice of a rock during the day.